sound judgment. For, however, the question may be shally determined by the Legislature, we do not seek a prohibitory law that does not have behind it a clear expression of the will of the people, unmixed with personal or party considerations.

"Prohibition by the people and for the people, unmixed with personal or party considerations.

"Prohibition by the people and for the people ought to be our watch word.

"3d. In order to carry on an effective campaign of agitation and education, in se large a territory as the State of Virginia, it will be necessary to increase our active force to at least seven men. For the maintenance of that force, we cannot depend on the unsupplemented results of our regular field day offerings. It will be necessary to have a yearly supplemental guarantee fund, if we are to do the effective work contemplated by this program. It is therefore necessary that steps should be taken to secure pledges for the necessary gharantee fund, and to increase our working force."

UNTERMEYER ON STAND

American Sugar Refining Company, charged with violation of the criminal clause of the Sherman antitrust law, was resumed in the United States District Court to-day, Samuel Untermeyer was called to the stand by the government. Mr. Untermeyer was engaged as attorney in June, 1903, by Adolph Segal, when Segal learned it was the American Sugar Refining Company that loaned him the $1,250,000 for which he surrendered the controlling interest in the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, which the defendants are charged with closing.

The American Sugar Refining Company notified Segal the stock in question would be sold because Segal had defaulted on the interest. Segal then retained Untermeyer to prevent the sale. Mr. Untermeyer said he went to see John E. Parsons, chief counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company, and Mr. Parsons told him that the company had whited long enough for the money.

"Weil, unless the refinery can be opened Mr. Segal will never be able to pay," Untermeyer said he told Parsons.
